Re: UPDATE RESPONSE TO THE CEASE & DESIST

Greetings,

Please reference my letter of July 22, 2011 that questions why the board has placed on its front page a large notice that the LPIA, CREATIVE CYBER INNOVATIONS, and STEVE DIVINE are not approved CE providers.

In my letter of July 22, 2011 I questioned why my company name has been placed on the site when I have never received any notice and there has never been a complaint filed on my online program. Furthermore, I questioned why the Board had decided to initiate this precedent when no other provider has had their name placed on the front page. In fact, I raised the question as to why I am being singled out.

It appears the board office has confirmed my allegations by removing the LPIA notice from the main website but leaving my company name and me personally on the front page. Again, please bear in mind that Creative Cyber Innovations has not been noticed to any hearing, and to the best of my knowledge is in full compliance of all regulations. In my letter of July 22, I indicated that I would honor your Cease and Desist order and immediately suspended my entire website until I have time to update the CE portions of the website to clarify that we are not holding classes.

In response, the Board has removed the LPIA name and left my name and Creative Cyber Innovations on the site, further damaging my company when I have never been noticed on any complaint. Remember- The Cease and Desist order named LPIA as well and the fact that you treat us differently only serves to prove the point that this is a personal attack on me.

Again, I ask for your cooperation in removing my name and that of my company from your website, and give you notice that I fully intend to defend myself at the September 20th board meeting and thereafter in what ever legal venue is required if needed. Please consider your actions carefully as do I.

Sincerely,

Steven D. Divine
